1 Put title of your first section here

This is the text of the first section. Even though this sentence started on the next line in my “tex” document, it doesn’t necessary start on a new line in the “pdf” file.

However, because there was a blank line in between the preceding sentences and this sentence (in the “tex” file), this sentence starts a new indented paragraph in the “pdf” file.

2 Put title of your second section here

Here’s the first sentence. If you want a bigger break between paragraphs, use the “paragraph” command, as illustrated below.

Notice where this sentence starts.

A titled paragraph! This sentence is the first sentence in a “titled” paragraph. Of course, there can be many sentences in a paragraph—as many as you like. (Did you see how three hyphens in the “tex” file make a long dash in the “pdf” file?)
